For immediate release

15th September 2010

David Russ, Managing Director of the South Wales Chamber of Commerce, said:

“For a long time the public sector have pulled at the purse strings of the private sector and a report such as the one published yesterday emphasises the argument to drastically reform parts of the public sector. The task for the government will be looking at how they can significantly reduce these types of burdens on the private sector to make sure there is an equal balance between both the public and private sector.”
